

Edwin Ellis

Professor Emeritis, The University of Alabama | Lilian, AL

Edwin S. Ellis is a Professor Emeritus, University of Alabama Department of Special Education and Multiple Abilities and Research Affiliate and SIM Professional Development Specialist, University of Kansas Center for Research on Learning.

Ed has conducted research on strategic instruction for over 30 years and works extensively on putting that research into practice. While his scholarship is well known and studied in the academic community, the practical, user-friendly instructional materials stemming from his research is used extensively in elementary and secondary schools as well as in teacher-preparation programs throughout North America.