WestLincoln Elementary School is a Title I Elementary School in Lincoln, Nebraska. The school serves just over 500 students in Pre-school through 5thGrades. In the summer of 2016, the staff at West Lincoln participated in training with Dr. Jim Knight to increase their Instructional Skills, focusing on creating and teaching with Learning Maps as described in Dr. Knight's book, High Impact Instruction. Learning Maps are one of the strategies the West Lincoln staff credit most for instructional improvement. West Lincoln is committed to developing systems and processes that guide improvement efforts for all students through solid classroom instruction and supports for students in ELL, Special Education and academic intervention. The administrative team works together to build leadership capacity in all teachers through clarity and coherence with all facets of School Improvement: Appraisal, Professional Development, Instructional Planning, School/Classroom Environment, Engaging Instruction, Coordinated Assessment Systems and Professional Responsibilities.
