

Suzanne Robinson

Associate Professor | University of Kansas | Lawrence, KS

Suzanne Robinson is an Associate Professor at the University of Kansas and Director of the Strategic Learning Center based in Lawrence, Kansas. At the University of Kansas, her work is focused on teacher preparation in special education for K-12 students with high incidence disabilities and doctoral student preparation for those who will become professors of teacher education at universities and colleges. Dr. Robinson is the current President of the Teacher Education Division of CEC. She has spent over twenty-five years working with schools, school districts, state and regional agencies, and professional organizations in school restructuring activities to promote academic achievement for struggling learners.