

Sue Woodruff

Independent Professional Developer | Muskegon, MI

Sue Woodruff is an independent professional developer and instructional coach who has been associated with the CRL at the University of Kansas for over 20 years. Sue has implemented at the classroom and school level at Muskegon High School, and in partnership with KUCRL, Muskegon High School partnered on several projects to learn more about a whole school approach to literacy. Upon retirement in 2001, Sue had opportunities to work on a variety of CLC projects as well as KUCRL research projects. Sue's passion lies in quality instruction for all students and in developing reading programs that have impact. Most recently, Sue has worked with schools implementing all aspects of SIM, FUSION Reading, and continues to work with schools implementing the Content Literacy Continuum or other aspects of literacy into the curriculum. Sue is particularly interested in capacity building and developing instructional leadership among school personnel.